"AON's reach is vast, stretching from the East Coast to the West Coast, and we are excited to announce Florida as our 19th operating state," said AON Chief Executive Officer Todd Schonherz. "Inaccessible cancer care continues to be a hurdle nationwide that hinders people from receiving the critical care they require to begin the journey to better health. Through our collection of community-based oncology practices, we are able to either continue providing or begin bringing care that is local and often more affordable. We look forward to serving Florida starting with Safety Harbor."

FOH is equipped to deliver the latest cancer care and therapies. The clinic includes three private exam rooms and an on-site infusion room for patients. Additionally, as a partner practice of AON, FOH offers on-site lab services, in-house pathology services, an in-house specialty pharmacy, and care management support and financial counseling for patients among other benefits.

"I have been passionate about medicine and oncology since I was young and had a close friend diagnosed with lymphoma," said Alemar. "I love every aspect of the medical profession and am honored to have been chosen by my patients as their trusted physician during this challenging time. I have a vision for the future of medical oncology and hematology in Pinellas County, and my passion to serve my community is stronger than ever."

Alemar received his medical degree from the University of Puerto Rico. He then completed an internal medicine residency and hematology-oncology fellowship at the University of South Florida and H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center. He has been practicing medicine for more than 18 years and is trained in treating various types of cancers including those that are challenging and rare.

"We are eager to welcome our newest community oncology practice to AON as well as Dr. Alemar who is highly skilled in providing care and treatments," said AON Chief Medical Officer Stephen "Fred" Divers, MD. "He will be of great value to Pinellas County, and we look forward to supporting him in his endeavors of delivering and elevating patient care."

"Dr. Alemar is a wonderful addition to the network," said Schonherz. "Community oncology practices are the key to closing the cancer care gap and ensuring these critical services remain accessible and affordable to all cancer patients. Practices such as Florida Oncology & Hematology are positioned to help cancer care remain affordable and accessible, which are two key components that can improve the care journey and outcomes. On behalf of the leadership and all of AON, I'd like to welcome Dr. Alemar."

AON is one of the fastest-growing networks of community oncology practices across the United States. The network has been dedicated to preserving the viability of community oncology to promote better patient care and results since its founding in 2018.
